Industrial Relations Conf. At Blue Ridge July 20-23

The 36th annual session of the Southern Industrial Relations Conference will be held at Blue Ridge, July 20-23. Theme of this year's session will be "Sound Human Relations in Industry." Several Cone Mills supervisors are planning to attend.

The conference will open at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, July 20 and will adjourn at 10:30 Saturday morning, July 23.

Dr. George D. Heaton, pastor of Myers Park Baptist Church, Charlotte, widely known for his work in industrial relations, will be the first speaker. This is his eighteenth time as conference chaplain. In addition to his address at the opening session, he will speak Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings.

Following Dr. Heaton's devotional address, Arthur H. (Red) Motley, editor of Parade Magazine, New York City, will launch the program with an address, "The World in Which We Live."

Robert Newcomb and Marge Sammons, of Newcomb and Sammons, Chicago, Ill., will discuss "The Worker's Attitude" at the Thursday morning session. A case history and copies of The Texitorian have been requested by the speakers for use in this discussion of techniques and trends in employee communication.

Training of Supervisors for "Sound Human Relations" will be topic of A. T. (Tap) Hanson's talk on the same morning. Mr. Hanson is director of industrial relations of West Point Manufacturing Company, West Point, Ga.

On Thursday, July 21 group meetings will be held with each being run twice to provide delegates an opportunity to attend two different sessions.

Some of the group topics are "Supervisory Training," "How to Handle a Human Relations Problem," "Employee Interviewing and Selection," "Effective Delegation of Authority," "Accident Prevention."

Other speakers will include Leo Aikman, editorial assistant and columnist of the Atlanta Constitution and Dr. Alfred P. Haake, economist, consultant and lecturer of Park Ridge, Ill. He is consultant to General Motors, through the courtesy of which he is presented at Blue Ridge.

Clarence N. Cone, vice president of Cone Mills Corporation, is a member of the board of directors of the Southern Industrial Relations Conference.

Lief to Advertising and Promotion Manager. A graduate of Boston University, Mr. Mitchell formerly served as advertising and promotion manager for Chicopee Mills, Inc.

No Holiday Fatalities

The Texitorian is gratified that Guilford County did not have a single fatal accident during the Fourth of July weekend. Members of Troop C State Highway Patrol with headquarters in Greensboro were especially proud of this. There were no fatalities reported in the entire 16-county area during the holiday week end; however, the city's first fatal auto accident wreck occurred on July 5.

HOW MANY HAZARDS?—How many accident hazards can you find in this picture of John A. Prone as he reminds us of the ACCIDENT

PREVENTION CONTEST? List the ones you see. Next week the Texitorian will give the correct list on the back page.

Cone Mills Club Makes Changes

In response to numerous requests to increase the number of guests which may be brought to the Cone Mills Club, from three to four, the club's board of directors is allowing four guests per member for the remainder of the summer. If this arrangement proves satisfactory, the number will stay at four. The board has also change the dates of election and annual meeting.

Election of officers which has been held the first week in June will be held the third week in May.

The annual meeting which has been held on the second Saturday in June will be held the last Saturday in May.

President Roy Yarborough has appointed the following committee chairmen: Raymond Smith, program; Ben Smith, improvements and finance; Melvin Fields, lake and grounds; Ruth Johnson, refreshment, and membership; rules and publicity, William Leonard.

The president has called attention to the party rule which requires the parent to be present at any party for his child. The parent is responsible for the supervision of the party and must assume responsibility for any damage to club property.

IN ARIZONA

Mrs. Elizabeth Fain and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brafford, Judy Brafford with headquarters in Greensboro were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Homer Smith in Phoenix, Arizona. Mrs. Smith is the daughter of Mrs. Fain. They will be gone about two weeks.

John A. (Accident) Prone Is Safety Contest Reminder

Here is our old Cronie, Cone Employee John A. (for Accident) Prone. He is just as cheerful and just as foolish as ever, we fear.

John's reappearance came just in time to remind us all that July, August, and September are months for Cone employees to take special care of our careless work and play habits and make a big effort to correct them. Just to give everyone something to work on, John has begun the Accident Prevention

Contest with a whole barrel of accident-praising mistakes. (Maybe he thinks we are having an accident contest instead of an accident prevention contest.)

Count the dangerous things in the picture, then resolve to avoid all of them during the three months of the Cone Mills Third Quarter Accident Prevention Contest and during every month in every year.

John will continue to appear on your plant bulletin boards and by your drinking fountains with his foolish antics and timely reminders. Watch for him and work for a safety plaque for your plant.

Tabardrey Plant Outstanding In Safety

Comparatively few plants in North Carolina have operated for one million or more employee-hours without a disabling injury by accident. Tabardrey Plant of Cone Mills Corporation, located at Haw River, is one of those to belong to this exclusive list.

Running nearly two years without time lost due to injury (and without a disabling injury of any kind), the employees of Tabardrey Plant chalked up more than 1,300,000 hours before breaking their record. In 1952 Print Works Plant bettered this by about 100,000 hours but had a poor record since.

"We regret that our record had to be broken," said Arthur Makin, Plant Manager at Tabardrey, "but we intend to continue to work to make our plant the safest textile plant in North Carolina." R. M. Mitchell, plant superintendent and Irwin Williams, personnel manager, both agreed that Tabardrey folk would continue their drive for a safer plant.

After cutting a white ribbon, the people entered the new building, where they participated in the service of worship. The pastor, Robert H. Bruhn, led the worshippers in dedication and brought the morning message. Music for this occasion was by Billy Stokes, organist; the white-robed choir gave Sanctus by Gounod and Wayne Cole, tenor soloist, sang Bless This House, by Brabe-Taylor. Pastor and congregation then joined in the spoken dedication.

The completed sanctuary is to the credit of Heenan Holt Construction Company, with Robert Foust and Troy Turner as supervisors. George Foxworth, of Burlington, drew the plans for this Georgian Colonial edifice.

The members of the construction committee were: Robert Smith, Arthur Makin, Z. Craig Cox, R. L. Neese, Joe Neese. The building

Legionnaire e Ready With Festival Program

Legionnaires of Cone Post have been burning midnight oil this week getting ready for the annual Legion Festival which will begin tomorrow (Saturday) in the grove near the White Oak Plant Office. Festivities will begin early tomorrow morning and last on into the night. Fun is in store for young and old alike.

Legionnaire Russell Pinkerton has been in contact with several people and has arranged to have a very interesting exhibit in his side show. Among his exhibits are a genuine red bat, not the ordinary bats you might see flying around your house at night but a red bat; a real ground hog, the world's smallest wind instrument; a swimming match with five contestants, and believe it or not, a honest to goodness Flying Saucer. For those who would like to know how they would look on television, he has an original video-scope and those visiting this side-show are welcome to use this costly instrument. Many other things too numerous to mention are included in this exhibit.

For those wanting to eat they will have those top-notch chefs, Cecil Elmore and Joe Odell who again by popular request will prepare those delicious hot dogs.

It would be impossible to mention all the Legionnaires who are taking part at this Festival.

Junior Weaver and Aaron Pinkerton have ordered many useful articles for their fish pond and don't believe they will run out of gifts this year.

Alton Wyrrick is making contacts in hopes of securing a merry-go-round for the children.

"Even if the mercury soars to 95 or above, come on down to the Festival and cool off with one or more of those delicious ice snowballs. Several flavors have been ordered," say the Legionnaires.

Proceeds from this project will be used for the Cone Post building fund. The members are hoping to have a Post Home in the not too distant future. Since Cone Post was organized in 1947 it has contributed to many worthy causes in this community and in the city.

Community Club Has Picnic Fun

W.M.U. president will be Patricia Taylor, Jack Hauthcock, senior R. A. counselor; Jim Kincaid, junior R. A. counselor; G. A. counselor; Betty Thornburg; general secretary, Roberta Truelove; church librarian, Charles Andrew; superintendent, Harold McBee; young people's superintendent, Brantley Edwards; Johny Oakes, Larry Thomas, Jack Hauthcock, Bobby Johnson, Harold Nicholson, Ronnie Money, Jimmy Jordan, chairman; Delsie Butler, Shirley Patterson and Betty Butler.

The Kate Ellen Gruver Circle of the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church met Monday night at the home of Mrs. Whitt Crutchfield, 1508 14th Street.

Mrs. T. W. Michael, presided and gave the devotional. The program was presented by Mrs. Henry Elder and Mrs. Michael.

Careful and Cautious

The recent attitude of the Communist leaders causes considerable bewilderment. It is truly difficult to understand the drastic change. Even the leaders who have been most caustic and bitter in denouncing the United States are now paying glowing tribute to our desire for peace.

We are not advocating a hostile attitude or even a cold reception of the Russian overtures at this time, but we do feel that we would be extremely foolish if we do not proceed with extreme caution and carefully watch every maneuver by the Communists.

We must take advantage of every opportunity to build for peace, but, with the background of the Communists, we cannot afford to accept everything on its face value. For that reason we must continue to prepare for the worst while working for the best.

The sudden change, of course, could be insidious strategy. On the other hand, it could result from the realization by the Communists that we are much stronger than they anticipated, or that they are too weak to accomplish their world domination program.

Then too, we hear very frequent rumors that all is not well in Russia economically. It could be that Russia's economic situation is such that they need help and feel that if they play their cards right we might be induced to come to their economic rescue.

Regardless, however, of the true reason behind the new Russian face, we must be careful and cautious.

Additional ferry crossings have been added to accommodate increased vacation traffic to coastal North Carolina. Now there are 20 round trips daily across Oregon Inlet to the Cape Hatteras National Seashore Park operating at 40-minute intervals. The first ferry leaves the north shore at 5 a.m. and the last ferry leaves the south shore (Hatteras Island) at 7 p.m. Five round trips have also been added across Croatan Sound to Roanoke Island on U. S. Highways 64 and 264. All State operated ferries are free in North Carolina and a schedule, revised as of June 1, may be obtained free upon request to the Department of Conservation and Development, Raleigh, North Carolina.

Mr. W. A. Gore, a watchman at the local plant, has literally magnetized the worms when he has gone angling for bass. In the past two weeks he has caught enough bass for fish fries of some magnitude. Not only does Mr. Gore catch the fish, he fries them so you just can't quit eating, and his coffee, made in a cast iron kettle, is a secret handed down from antebellum days.

Health For All

How Long Will It Keep?

July Weather brings up the perennial housekeeping problem of the over-stuffed refrigerator. Cool drinks are in demand; fresh vegetables are coming in from the garden every day. What foods must be refrigerated to prevent spoilage?

Left-over cooked foods, especially meat and poultry, must be refrigerated as quickly as possible to prevent development of the bacteria known as staphylococci. These are little fellows that cause food poisoning. Putting hot foods right into the refrigerator won't hurt the food, but it may raise the temperature in an already overloaded refrigerator too high. Place the containers of hot foods in cool water before refrigerating to speed cooling. Don't leave them outside more than an hour.

Other excellent mediums for development of staphylococci are sandwiches made with mayonnaise, soup stocks, and gravies. Four hours outside the refrigerator is the limit of safety. How long they may be held depends on many factors. The safest rule is to use them up within a few days.

Fresh meat keeps in the refrigerator somewhat better than cooked meat. Chopped meat should be frozen or cooked immediately. The life of fresh meat can be prolonged by cooking just before it "turns." This kills the bacteria in the fresh product, so you start off with a "new" food. Vegetable shortenings and salad oil should be refrigerated if they are to be kept for more than a few weeks.

Fresh vegetables are best, of course, if they are eaten within a few hours of picking. High temperatures speed the enzymatic change from sugar to starch—the reason why city folk never know the real flavor of corn on the cob and new peas. If these vegetables must be held before cooking, refrigerate corn in its husks and peas in their pods.

To get the most from your refrigerator these hot days, be sure you aren't wasting space on unopened bottles and cans and useless little tubs of left-overs. Don't open the refrigerator door unnecessarily. And be sure to defrost when a half inch of frost has accumulated on the freezing unit.

Hi-Fi Now High Styles, Too

Hi-Fi in its beginning stages was somewhat reminiscent of the days of the crystal set. It was mostly the object of adoration of those technical-minded putters, who can cause a homemaker to tear her hair. In their enthusiasm to bring out through high-fidelity recordings "full-bodied tones one hears when listening to 'live' music, they were likely to have strung up around the house a series of wires, coils and dials typical of a Rube Goldberg drawing. This left many a housewife lukewarm about her husband's hobby.

It was not long, however, before phonograph manufacturers came to the rescue, and began producing Hi-Fi sets which are a decorative addition to any room setting. In fact, there is a set which is the latest word in modern design.

It can be used with slim brass legs, which can be ordered with the set; or, placed next to your most comfortable livingroom chair, it becomes an attractive end table, just the proper height for easy operation. The same set can be used as table top or cabinet top model. It can, for example, make an interesting decorative unit when used with low cabinets or chests of drawers finished to match. Cabinets create good record-storage space. Use the Hi-Fi set at one end to give height to the place, a lamp

Unemployment Average 4% During Present Century

In appraising the significance of recent levels of unemployment it is helpful to place them in the perspective of a record running back to the beginning of this century.

A striking feature of this long-term record is the exceptionally high levels of unemployment during the 1930's. The peak was reached in 1933, when 25 percent of the labor force was unemployed. Starting in 1931, unemployment remained in excess of 14 percent of the civilian labor force for a full 10 years. This level of unemployment has never been reached in any year either before or since that decade.

The unemployment record since the end of World War II resembles, in its general character, the years prior to 1929, rather than the catastrophic years of the 1930's. Between 1900 and 1929 unemployment averaged 3.9 percent of the civilian labor force. Between 1946 and 1954 it averaged 3.6 percent. Although unemployment rose sharply between 1953 and 1954, the 1954 level was exceeded in 7 of the years since World War II, unemployment has ranged between which is a little taller than the set at the other end, and accessories, such as heavy ash trays and ceramic flower bowls, in between. Varying heights lend unusual decorative interest to such a unit as this.

Not only will Hi-Fi take its place as a part of your room's decor, but used with high-fidelity recordings, it will give the effect of a full-scale symphony performing right in the room with you.

Frequently, foremen who are themselves highly skilled in the mechanics of particular job appear unable to train others. Consequently the employee is told—not taught. He does not know why he is doing something a certain way, nor what the end result should be. Special hazards surrounding the job are not emphasized. Standards of quality, quantity and conduct are loosely defined.

The importance of the job is not sufficiently stressed. The employee's performance is not carefully checked in the learning stages. The result of such slipshod in-

Much research has been done on the subject of employee training, and its importance and application is not limited to certain industries. It applies equally to the new experienced man and to the new man on the swing cutoff saw; to the new man on the cat; to the new girl in the office.

A good employee training program will prevent accidents—it will help get rivets hammered instead of skulls. (N.S.C. Newsletter)

DRIVERS' PRAYER SAVING LIVES

Business men in Virginia paid the printing costs; the Daughters of the American Revolution of that state distributed thousands of copies to Virginia motorists—and the "Motorist's Prayer," fixed on the sun visor of automobiles, may be saving uncounted lives in the Old Dominion. It follows:

Grant me a steady hand, and watchful eye,

That no man shall be hurt when I pass by.

Thou gavest life, and pray no set of mine

May take away or mar that gift of Thine.

Shelter those, dear Lord, who bear me company.

Teach me to use my car for others' need.

Now miss through love of speed

The beauty of Thy world; that thus I may

With joy and courtesy go my way.

The road to success is dotted with many tempting parking places.

REACTION DISTANCE

When you are tempted to speed, remember the words of Barney Oldfield, dean of American automobile racers: "When the speedometer hits 60," declared Mr. Oldfield, "think of 60 feet, for that is how far your car will travel after you decide to stop, and before your foot even touches the brake pedal. When your speedometer says 50 think of 55 feet; if 40, of 44 feet."

Experts call this the "reaction distance," that is, the distance your car will travel before your nerves and muscles can respond to your mental command to apply the brake. To find how much room you need to stop safely at 40 or 50 miles an hour, multiply this reaction distance by three. For instance, at 60 miles an hour, you cannot stop your car in less space than 198 feet, or almost the distance of an ordinary city block.

WHAT CAUSED IT?

A boy waved goodby to his friend as he drove away from her house. In that second or two of inattention, he ran into a parked car that was in plain sight ahead of him.

By admitting to his father why this silly accident had occurred, the boy learned to be a better driver.

Often, who caused a mistake is less important than what caused it. When you dig out the cause—no matter how it hurts your pride to admit it—you are on the way to avoiding that same kind of mistake again.

There's a new Texas yarn—about the woman who called her hubby and said, "Will you please get the car out, Tex, and drive the kids to the back yard so they can play?"
